Connecting with up to nine executive peers from a diverse range of voluntary and public sector organisations, learning from fellow CEO's and Chief Officers

Recharge your thinking

The strategic impact groups are problem solving peer groups, facilitated by an experienced CSLE Action Learning Coach. They provide a space to consider new approaches and fresh perspectives, challenge conventional thinking, confront problems and get peer feedback on the toughest decisions that you make. They will help you dig deeper to find new opportunities, and they will hold you accountable for taking action between group meetings.

You will have an opportunity to develop in the following areas:

- Certified Continuing personal development (CPD)
- Developing networks
- Building and maintaining relationships
- Working with other Chief Executives/Chief Officers
- Encouraging improvement and innovation
- Problem Solving
- Identifying the contexts for change
- Influencing the vision of public services
- Developing strategy

Strategic Impact Group Features:

Participants will sign up to five one-day sessions at a cost of £800. The Group will meet at a different location each time, hosted by one of the participants. This provides a series of organisational visits, deepening the learning of cross sector challenges. The cost of attendance is therefore subsidised through this collaborative cross-sector delivery and the sharing of resources including venues. Each participant is asked to pay their own travel and other costs. Refreshments will be provided by the host organisation, but participants may need to provide their own lunches.

Costs:

Public Sector rate: £800 for the programme of five Strategic Impact Group Sessions
